

To whom it may concern at the FCC:

Your car comes back from a service with adverts all over it. You complain and they say "don't try to infringe my freedom of speech". Then you notice that the cost of the adverts has been added to your service bill. They say "it is proper that recipients 'bear some cost' of unsolicited adverts".

Keep these people off MY phone, off MY email. Spam filters are a must, at every level we can employ them.

Thank you.
